REVISIONS TO DISCIPLINES LIST FORM

DATE SUBMITTED: 5 April 2021

DISCIPLINES LIST TITLE: Native American/American Indian Studies

This proposal is for a: New discipline

Reason for the proposal: Create a new discipline

PROPOSAL LANGUAGE: (If this is an existing minimum qualification, please include the original language and change using strikeouts and italics).

Master’s degree in Native American/American Indian studies OR a master’s in Ethnic Studies and bachelor’s degree in Native American/American Indian studies OR the equivalent.

PROPOSAL EVIDENCE:

Required: (1) Investigation of the following and (2) Statement of Findings:

- Contacted an associated professional organization to determine support of proposal.
  - CCC Ethnic Studies Council Co-Chair, Dr. Carlos Guerrero (guerrecc@lacitycollege.edu)
  - UC Davis Native American Studies Chair, Dr. Beth Rose Middleton (brmiddleton@ucdavis.edu)
  - CSUS California Indian History and Curriculum, Dr. Rose Borunda (borunda@csus.edu)
  - Native American Studies Curriculum Co-Coordinator of Liberated Ethnic Studies Institute, Dr. Browning Nedd (bnneddneau@csuchico.edu)
  - California Tribal College, Director Juliette Maestas (jmaestas@californiatribalcollege.com)

- Included evidence of degrees within the proposed revision of the discipline or new discipline.

- Provided a list of the titles of the degrees and programs to document the need for a new or revised discipline using the below criteria:

Native American Studies was established as a discipline in 1969 – along with African American Studies, Chicano Studies, and Asian American Studies. In 1975, the NAS Major had been established at UC Davis and the minor went into effect in the 1980s. It received departmental status in 1993. In 1993, the Department offered its first graduate seminar. The Graduate Program in Native American Studies at UC Davis was approved in 1998, making UC Davis only the second university in the nation to offer a Ph.D. in Native American Studies.

Native Studies has academic scholarship, textbooks, accomplished scholars, Native American Studies databases and journals, and courses that are offered at community colleges, CSU, UC, and other colleges and universities.

Graduate Degree Programs in Native American/American Indian Studies include (partial list):
1. Native American Studies, UCLA
2. Native American Studies, UC Davis
3. Native American Studies, UC Irvine
4. Native American Studies, University of Oklahoma
5. American Indian Studies, Arizona State University

Bachelor of Arts program in Native American/American Indian Studies include (partial list):

Native American Studies, Stanford University
Native American Studies, UCLA
Native American Studies, UC Riverside
Native American Studies, Humboldt State University
American Indian Studies, Chico State University
Native American Studies, Sacramento State University
American Indian Studies, San Diego State University
Native American Studies, UC Berkeley
American Indian Studies, San Francisco State University
Native American Studies, UC Davis

☑ Provided evidence of statewide need to show that a change is necessary and is not merely a response to a unique need of one college, district or region.

In the past, ASCCC Disciplines List grouped Native American studies in “Ethnic Studies.” But as ethnic studies grew into a separate field, and as African American studies and Chicano studies grew into separate fields in the last fifty years, it is necessary for both Asian American studies and Native American studies to also be listed separately and distinctly.

In the California Community College system, this is a partial list of campuses that have Native American/American Indian studies courses:

Mt. San Jacinto
Sacramento City
Santa Barbara City
Solano
Santa Rosa Jr.
Palomar
L.A. Southwest
Sierra College
Victor Valley Community College
Woodland Community College
Pasadena City College
Santa Monica College
Fresno City College
San Diego Mesa College
Rio Hondo College
El Camino College
Included a discipline seconder from another district.

- Dr. Tami Cheshire, Folsom Lake College, Cheshit@flc.losrios.edu (916) 420-3614
- Dr. Melissa Moreno, Woodland Community College, mmmoreno@yccd.edu (530) 400-0439

Explained the impact of proposal across the state using a list of pro and con arguments and included refutation of the con arguments

PRO ARGUMENTS
1. Native American studies at California's community colleges will be positively impacted by the CSU Area F Ethnic Studies requirement.
2. With MQX having been separately established for African American studies and Latina/o, Chicano studies recently, it is necessary to have parallelism with Asian American studies and Native American studies.
3. Both the fields of Native American Studies and ethnic studies have established different trajectories in the last 50 years and need to be recognized broadly across the CCC system
4. Both the fields of Native American Studies and ethnic studies have grown tremendously in the last 50 years in the California Community Colleges system and in academia.

CON ARGUMENTS
1. Some CCC faculty are unaware of Native American Studies.
   The establishment of the Native American Studies MQ will raise awareness of the discipline broadly across the system to better serve and retain students with the use of authentic Native American Studies faculty instruction, and serve as a practice of equity.

Provided other evidence, such as significant changes to the field, that requires a change to the Disciplines List.

1. Changes to the field of Native American Studies is that is has grown in terms of course curriculum development and pedagogy. More schools in all systems are offering Native American Studies courses and more schools are offering degree programs in Native American Studies.
2. With AB 1460 it is essential that Native American Studies be recognized by the CCC as a separate, autonomous, and live field of academic endeavor.

SUBMISSION

Contact person (author of proposal):
Melissa Leal, Ph.D. Sierra College
Enrolled Member - Ohlone/Costanoan Esselen Nation
(916) 949-2939 (Cell). (916) 542-0213 (Google Voice)
Email address: mleal@sierracollege.edu

Tami Cheshire, Folsom Lake College
(916) 420-3614
Email address: Cheshit@flc.losrios.edu
Signature of College Academic Senate President:

Signature Page attached

College:

Email address:

Date approved by College Academic Senate:

OR

Organization: ____________________________________________

President: _____________________________________________

Phone for President: ____________________________________

Date Approved by Organization: ___________________________

RETURN FORM TO: The Academic Senate for California Community Colleges
                 One Capitol Mall, Suite 340, Sacramento, CA 95814
                 Email: disciplineslist@asccc.org

* By signing this document, the Senate President is certifying that the required investigation and statement offindings have been sufficiently addressed.
March 20, 2021

To: California Community Colleges Academic Senate Board

Re: Revisions to Native American Studies, CCC Minimum Qualifications Handbook

The California Community Colleges Ethnic Studies Faculty Council represents faculty teaching African American Studies, Asian American Studies, Chicana/o/x Studies, Native American Studies and Ethnic Studies at Community Colleges throughout the state of California.

Our leadership includes faculty who helped to create the California Community College Minimum Qualifications for both African American Studies and Chicano Studies. It is now time to complete the task and create Minimum Qualifications for Native American Studies and Asian American Studies.

I am writing to support the proposal to add "Native American Studies" to the CCC Minimum Qualifications Handbook. It is critical that Native American studies be recognized by CCC as a separate and growing field of academic endeavor. Native American Studies has been taught in California since the late 1960s. UC Davis has been offering graduate seminars in Native American Studies since 1993 and has had a Native American Studies Graduate Program since 1998. As CCC implements the mandates of CSU Area F, Native American Studies will be taught at a growing number of campuses throughout the state.

Please grant Native American Studies the independent recognition which has already been given to African American Studies and Chicano Studies.

Sincerely,

Carlos Reyes Guerrero, PhD
Vice-Chair CCC Ethnic Studies Council
Professor of Chicana/o Studies, LACC
March 21, 2021

Re: Revisions to the CCC Minimum Qualifications Handbook to include Native American Studies

To Whom It May Concern:

I understand the proposal to add “Native American Studies” to the California Community College (CCC) Minimum Qualifications (MQs) Handbook. MQs are defined as “the minimum amounts of education or experience and the minimum level of knowledge, skills, abilities, licensures, certifications and other job-related requirements that must be met for a candidate to be considered for a position.” In this case, I fully support the request to require MQs to teach Native American Studies in the CCC system. At this time in history, and with AB 1460, it is essential that Native American Studies be recognized by the CCC as a separate, autonomous, and dynamic field of academic endeavor.

Although Native American Studies has social justice roots, it is the NOT the same as the general field of Social Justice. It is also NOT the same as the field of History or Anthropology. Native American Studies has its own foundational history, body of scholarship, accomplished scholars, and decolonizing methodologies that are connected to Native and Indigenous nations and communities. Native American Studies scholarship is global, hemispheric and regional focused, and it is connected to tribal and Indigenous identity, struggles, social movements, sovereignty/autonomy, and unique past and present contributions. Native American Studies scholarship includes key concepts and readings by Native American Studies scholars. We have our own academic associations, including the Native American and Indigenous Association and the American Indian Studies Association, as well as other annual conferences and symposiums. In our State, the California Indian Conference has taken place for over thirty years. We also have a vibrant California Indian History Curriculum Coalition, housed on the CSU Sacramento website, to help guide the development of improved K-12 NAS curriculum. In addition, we have the emerging California Tribal College, currently located in Woodland, CA, and the California Indian Nations College, located in Palm Desert, CA.

Native American Studies databases and journals include, but not limited to:

American Indian Culture and Research Journal
The American Indian Quarterly
March 21, 2021

Re: Revisions to the CCC Minimum Qualifications Handbook to include Native American Studies

To Whom It May Concern:

I understand the proposal to add “Native American Studies” to the California Community College (CCC) Minimum Qualifications (MQs) Handbook. MQs are defined as “the minimum amounts of education or experience and the minimum level of knowledge, skills, abilities, licensures, certifications and other job-related requirements that must be met for a candidate to be considered for a position.” In this case, I fully support the request to require MQs to teach Native American Studies in the CCC system. At this time in history, and with AB 1460, it is essential that Native American Studies be recognized by the CCC as a separate, autonomous, and dynamic field of academic endeavor.

Although Native American Studies has social justice roots, it is the NOT the same as the general field of Social Justice. It is also NOT the same as the field of History or Anthropology. Native American Studies has its own foundational history, body of scholarship, accomplished scholars, and decolonizing methodologies that are connected to Native and Indigenous nations and communities. Native American Studies scholarship is global, hemispheric and regional focused, and it is connected to tribal and Indigenous identity, struggles, social movements, sovereignty/autonomy, and unique past and present contributions. Native American Studies scholarship includes key concepts and readings by Native American Studies scholars. We have our own academic associations, including the Native American and Indigenous Association and the American Indian Studies Association, as well as other annual conferences and symposia. In our state, the California Indian Conference has taken place for over thirty years. We also have a vibrant California Indian History Curriculum Coalition, housed on the CSU Sacramento website, to help guide the development of improved K-12 NAS curriculum. In addition, we have the emerging California Tribal College, currently located in Woodland, CA, and the California Indian Nations College, located in Palm Desert, CA.

Native American Studies databases and journals include, but not limited to:

American Indian Culture and Research Journal
The American Indian Quarterly
American Indian and Alaskan Native Mental Health Research
American Indian Law Review
Journal of American Indian Education
Studies in American Indian Literatures
Journal of the Native American and Indigenous Studies Association
Decolonization: Indigeneity, Education & Society

Native American Studies was established as a discipline in 1969 – along with African American Studies, Chicano Studies, and Asian American Studies. In 1975, the Native American Studies Major was established at UC Davis and the minor went into effect in the 1980s. It received departmental status in 1993. In 1993, the Department offered its first graduate seminar. The Graduate Program in Native American Studies at UC Davis was approved in 1998, making UC Davis only the second university in the nation to offer a Ph.D. in Native American Studies.

UC Davis Native American Studies acknowledges there are other graduate degree programs in Native American/American Indian Studies. This includes, but not limited to:

Native American Studies, Stanford University
Native American Studies, UCLA
Native American Studies; UC Riverside
Native American Studies, CSU Humboldt
American Indian Studies, San Diego State University
Native American Studies, UC Berkeley
American Indian Studies, San Francisco State University
Native American Studies, UC Davis, Native American Studies
American Indian Studies, CSU Chico
Native American Studies, CSU Sacramento
American Indian Studies, CSU Long Beach
American Indian Studies, CSU San Marcos

The following CCC campuses have Native American Studies (i.e., American Indian Studies) courses, but are not limited to:

Mt. San Jacinto
Sacramento City
There is a statewide need for CCC to recognize Minimum Qualifications in NAS specifically. This is not merely a response to a local need of one community college, district, or region. This need is apparent in the number of students majoring in Native American Studies and interested in learning about Native American Studies, especially regarding traditional ecological knowledge and history.

In the past, the “ASCCC Disciplines List” grouped Native American Studies in “Ethnic Studies.” But as Ethnic Studies grew into a separate field, and as African American Studies and Chicana/o Studies grew into separate fields of study in the last fifty years, it is now necessary for both Native American Studies and Asian American Studies to also be listed separately and distinctly.

In sum, Native American Studies exists as a substantial and expanding field of study. Native American students, staff, and faculty are present on all campuses. For the sake of both academic rigor and equity and inclusion, we hope that this proposal and recommendation for specifically recognizing the importance of Native American Studies degrees, certifications and other indicators of training and education in this important area of teaching and knowledge production will be approved and accepted.

Sincerely,

Elisabeth (Beth Rose) Middleton Manning, PhD
Professor and Chair Dept. of Native American Studies
Yocha Dehe Endowed Chair in California Indian Studies
University of California, Davis
brmiddleton@ucdavis.edu
April 21, 2021

Re: Revisions to the CCC Minimum Qualifications Handbook to include Native American Studies

To Whom It May Concern:

I understand the proposal to add “Native American Studies” to the California Community College (CCC) Minimum Qualifications (MQs) Handbook. MQs are defined as “the minimum amounts of education or experience and the minimum level of knowledge, skills, abilities, licensures, certifications and other job-related requirements that must be met for a candidate to be considered for a position.” In this case, I fully support the request to require MQs to teach Native American Studies in the CCC system. At this time in history, and with AB 1460, it is essential that Native American Studies be recognized by the CCC as a separate, autonomous, and dynamic field of academic endeavor.

As a new emerging California Tribal College, we relay and share the important message with University of California Davis, Native American Studies Department, in which Native American Studies has social justice roots, it is the not the same as the general field of Social Justice. It is also not the same as the field of History or Anthropology. Native American Studies has its own foundational history, body of scholarship, accomplished scholars, and decolonizing methodologies that are connected to Native and Indigenous nations and communities. Native American Studies scholarship is global, hemispheric and regional focused, and it is connected to tribal and Indigenous identity, struggles, social movements, sovereignty/autonomy, and unique past and present contributions. Native American Studies scholarship includes key concepts and readings by Native American Studies scholars. We have our own academic associations, including the Native American and Indigenous Association and the American Indian Studies Association, as well as other annual conferences and symposiums. In our State, the California Indian Conference has taken place for over thirty years. We also have a vibrant California Indian History Curriculum Coalition, housed on the CSU Sacramento website, to help guide the development of improved K-12 NAS curriculum. In addition, we have the California Indian Nations College, located in Palm Desert, CA.

Native American Studies databases and journals include, but not limited to:

American Indian Culture and Research Journal
The American Indian Quarterly
American Indian and Alaskan Native Mental Health Research
American Indian Law Review
Journal of American Indian Education
Studies in American Indian Literatures
Journal of the Native American and Indigenous Studies Association
Decolonization: Indigeneity, Education & Society
Native American Studies was established as a discipline in 1969 – along with African American Studies, Chicano Studies, and Asian American Studies. In 1975, the Native American Studies Major was established at UC Davis and the minor went into effect in the 1980s. It received departmental status in 1993. In 1993, the Department offered its first graduate seminar. The Graduate Program in Native American Studies at UC Davis was approved in 1998, making UC Davis only the second university in the nation to offer a Ph.D. in Native American Studies.

UC Davis Native American Studies acknowledges there are other graduate degree programs in Native American/Indian Studies. This includes, but not limited to:

Native American Studies, Stanford University
Native American Studies, UCLA
Native American Studies; UC Riverside
Native American Studies, CSU Humboldt
American Indian Studies, San Diego State University
Native American Studies, UC Berkeley
American Indian Studies, San Francisco State University
Native American Studies, UC Davis, Native American Studies
American Indian Studies, CSU Chico
Native American Studies, CSU Sacramento
American Indian Studies, CSU Long Beach
American Indian Studies, CSU San Marcos

The following CCC campuses have Native American Studies (i.e., American Indian Studies) courses, but are not limited to:

Mt. San Jacinto
Sacramento City
Santa Barbara City
Solano
Santa Rosa Jr.
Palomar
L.A. Southwest
Sierra College
Woodland Community College

There is a statewide need for CCC to recognize Minimum Qualifications in NAS specifically. This is not merely a response to a local need of one community college, district, or region. This need is apparent in the number of students majoring in Native American Studies and interested in learning about Native American Studies, especially regarding traditional ecological knowledge and history.

In the past, the “ASCCC Disciplines List” grouped Native American Studies in “Ethnic Studies.” But as Ethnic Studies grew into a separate field, and as African American Studies and Chicana/o Studies grew into separate fields of study in the last fifty years, it is now necessary for both Native American Studies and Asian American Studies to also be listed separately and distinctly.

In sum, Native American Studies exists as a substantial and expanding field of study. Native American students, staff, and faculty are present on all campuses. For the sake of both academic rigor and equity and inclusion, we hope that this proposal and recommendation for specifically recognizing the importance of Native American Studies degrees, certifications and other indicators of training and education in this important area of teaching and knowledge production will be approved and accepted.

Sincerely,

Juliet Maestas,
Director
California Tribal College
Signature of College Academic Senate President⁴:

Signature: Sonja Verma

College: Sierra College

Email address: sueverma@sierracollege.edu

Date approved by College Academic Senate: 04/14/2021

OR

Organization: __________________________________________

President: _____________________________________________

Phone for President: __________________________________

Date Approved by Organization: ____________________________

RETURN FORM TO:

The Academic Senate for California Community Colleges
One Capitol Mall, Suite 340, Sacramento, CA 95814
Email: disciplineslist@asccc.org

⁴By signing this document, the Senate President is certifying that the required investigation and statement findings have been sufficiently addressed.