	This participatory session is for faculty, senate leaders, curriculum chairs, and administrators invested in creating opportunities to enhance student success and access. In light of CDCP funding changes, CTE initiatives, and the restructuring of adult and continuing education, new opportunities for college-wide discussions are vital to ensure that colleges navigate the ever-changing balance between state funding and mandates and the mission of creating and maintaining quality curriculum that enhances student success. Curriculum committee members and participants from colleges with noncredit programs will be on hand to provide guidance in how to facilitate these discussions locally. The goal of this session is for participants to draft a working plan to help their colleges make informed decisions about noncredit and credit instruction that best serves their students.
